THE CASE OF DICK McCANN.

The Application for a Writ of Habeas Corpus to take the Case out of the State Court—Judge Trigg decides that he has no Jurisdiction in the Case.

Judge Trigg delivered the following opinion in the United States District Court Monday morning:

Ex-Parte J. R. McCann.

This case comes up on the petition of J. R. McCann to the United States District Judge for the District of Tennessee, for a writ of habeas corpus to be directed to one M. D. Bearden who, it is alledged, illegally detains the petitioner in custody, and deprives him of his liberty. The petitioner states "that he was lately an officer in the armies of the so-called Confederate States, as such surrendered and was regularly paroled, under the agreements entered into by the authorities of the United States, and the commanders of the armies of said Confederacy—that he thereafter took and subscribed the oath prescribed in the amnesty proclamation of the President of the United States, of May twenty ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-five—that he has fully and faithfully kept said parole and oath, and is entitled to all the immunities and protection offered and extended by them—that, in direct and palpable violation of said parole and pardon, he has been arrested and confined in jail in Knox county, Tennessee, to answer for an act, (before a State court) fully condoned and pardoned by the National Government." And proceeding to set forth the causes of his arrest and detention, he states the allegation against him to be "that he was a member of a court martial before which one A. C. Hann was tried during the war, at Knoxville, and who was subsequently executed by the military authorities of the so-called Confederate States, after the proclamation of martial law; and upon this state of facts and indictment was found, and is now pending against him in the Circuit Court of Knox county, for murder."

He states in his petition that the said Hann was arraigned and tried at Knoxville in the winter of eighteen hundred and sixty-one, by a court martial, regularly ordered and convened by the military authorities of the Confederate States then at war with the United States, and then in full, complete, and undisturbed occupancy and possession of the whole of that division of the State of Tennessee wherein the trial occurred.

Hann, it was stated, was charged as a secret, active public enemy of the so-called Confederate States, and of the armies so in the occupation of said country, being that division of the State known as East Tennessee, with having committed an act contrary to the laws of war.—He was charged, as it is stated in the petition, with conspiring and attempting with others, secretly, clandestinely, and in the night time, and not in connection with any organized or recognized body of the troops of the United States, to destroy the railroad from Chattanooga to Bristol—said road running and lying wholly within the military lines of the Confederate forces, and being used by the armies of the said Confederacy for the daily transportation of troops, munitions of war, supplies, etc. It was also charged against said Hann that he actually burned and destroyed one of the bridges upon said road, and shot and captured divers Confederate soldiers guarding said bridge, on the night of the ninth of November, eighteen hundred and sixty-one. The petitioner states that the trial of Hann occupied some eight days; that he was allowed counsel of his own choice to defend him; and that the whole proceeding was conducted entirely in accordance with the laws, rules and usages of war.

The petition then avers "that holding of him, under these circumstances, by State authority, is a direct negation, and setting aside of the amnesty and pardon authorized by the General Government to induce all persons to lay down arms, to return to their loyality, and to restore the authority of the United States."

Upon the foregoing state of facts, the petitioner prays that the writ of habeas corpus may issue, to the end that justice may be done him in the premises, and that he be released from his alleged illegal confinement. Of course upon this application the statement of facts appearing on the face of the petition, which is duly verified by the oath of the petitioner, is to be taken and considered as true, and upon the facts so stated must this application be determined.

It is apparent, from the facts stated in the petition, that the first question presented for consideration is whether the petitioner is illegally detained in custody? This question has been so ably, zealously and elaborately argued that I feel constrained to express an opinion upon it.—It is insisted, on behalf of the petitioner, that the late rebellion against the authority of the Government of the United States was in fact a civil war, and that the persons engaged in it were belligerents, and as such entitled to all the rights appertaining to the laws of war. And, inasmuch as the petitioner as a member of the court martial regularly convened, by order of superiors, in conformity to the laws and usages of war, and as such member, in the regular discharge of his duty, concurred in the finding which resulted in the death of Hann, it is argued that he is no more criminal and no more responsible for the act than would be the judge of a civil court, who, in the discharge of his duty, might pronounce a similar sentence against a party found guilty by the verdict of a jury.—And consequently it is insisted that the petitioner cannot be held personally responsible for his complicity in the action of the court martial, and that he cannot, therefore, be held amenable to the laws of the State of Tennessee upon the indictment pending against him for murder in the Circuit Court of Knox county.

It must be conceded, I think, that if the rebellion, as it has been almost uniformly denominated by the authorities of the United States, became, and was in fact a civil war, in the just sense of that term, and being such a war, that the parties on both sides were bound to observe the common laws of war; and if a court martial, organized as the one in question is stated to have been, be in conformity to the laws and usages of war, for the trial of persons circumstanced as the petition states that Hann was, then I am unable to perceive how the conclusion of the counsel of the petitioner can be escaped. But it is to be remembered that, in order to have this effect, the court must be regularly convened by order of the proper authority, and otherwise conducted in conformity to the law and usages of war. For if not so ordered and conducted the taking of human life by the judgment of such a tribunal could not be justified.

Then we come to the question—was the late rebellion in its inception and progress a mere rebellion, or did it pass beyond those boundaries which ordinarily limit a rebellion, and attain the proportions of a civil war, and by consequence entitle the parties engaged in it to all the rights of belligerents?

"A civil war," says Mr. Vattel, "is when a party arises in a State which no longer obeys the sovereign, and is sufficiently strong to make head against him, or when, in a republic, the nation is divided into two opposite factions, and both sides take up arms. Usage applies the term civil war to every war between members of the same political society. If it is between a part of the citizens on one side, and the sovereign and those who obey him on the other, it is sufficient that the malcontents have some reason to take up arms, in order that the disturbance should be called civil war, and not rebellion.—The Prince never fails to call rebels all his subjects who openly resist him; but when the latter become sufficiently strong to make head against him—to compel him to carry on war regularly against them—he must be contented with the term civil war. Civil war breaks the bonds of society and the government; it gives rise in a nation to two independent parties, who acknowledge no common judge. The common laws of war are in civil wars to be observed on both sides. The same reasons which make them obligatory between foreign States, render them more necessary in the unhappy circumstances where two exasperated parties are destroying their common country."

To any one at all familiar with the incidents of the last four years, if upon reading this quotation he will recall the number, power, and organizations of the persons engaged in hostile operations against our Government, he will be willing to concede that the recent conflict of arms between the opposing forces, although at the beginning it may have been consequent upon a mere rebellion, yet that soon culminated into civil war.

"When a part of a State," says another modern writer, "takes up arms against the Government, if it is sufficiently strong to resist its action and to constitute two parties of equally balanced forces, the existence of civil war is thenceforward determined. If the conspirators against the Government have not the means of assuming this position, their movement does not pass beyond a rebellion. A true civil war breaks the bonds of society by dividing it in fact into two independent societies, it is for this consideration that we treat of it in international law, since each party forming as it were a separate nation, both should be regarded as subject to the laws of war. This subjection to the laws of nations is the more necessary in civil wars, since, these, by nourishing more hatred and resentments than foreign wars, require more the corrective of the law of nations in order to moderate their ravages." (See note to Wheaton's International Law, 523.)

But it seems unnecessary to quote other authorities to establish the true character of the great civil commotion through which our country has just passed, when we have a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States which establishes and defines its true character. In the cases recently decided by the Supreme Court, and which are known as the "prize" cases reported in the second volume of Black's Reports, the Court, as it seems to me, has settled this question, and no United States Court or Judge, nor indeed can any State Court disregard that decision. Mr. Justice Grier, in delivering the opinion of the Court in those cases, says: "The parties belligerent in a public war are independent nations. But it is not necessary to constitute war that both parties should be acknowledged as independent nations or sovereign States. A war may exist where one of the belligerents claims sovereign rights as against the other insurrection against a Government may or may not culminate in an organized rebellion, but a civil war always begins by insurrection against the lawful authority of the Government. A civil war is never solemnly declared; it becomes such by accidents—the number, power and organization of the persons who originate and carry it on. When the party in rebellion occupy and hold in a hostile manner a certain portion of territory; have declared their independence; have cast off their allegiance; have organized armies; have commenced hostilities against their former sovereign, the world acknowledges them as belligerents, and the contest a war. They claim to be in arms to establish their liberty and independence, in order to become a sovereign State, while the sovereign party treats them as insurgents and rebels, who owe allegiance and who should be punished with death for treason.

"The laws of war, as established among nations, have their foundation in reason, and all tend to mitigate the cruelties and misery produced by the scourge of war. Hence the parties to a civil war usually concede to each other belligerent rights.—They exchange prisoners, and adopt the other courtesies and rules common to public or national wars." The learned Judge then quotes from Vattel substantially the same paragraph given in the preceding part of this opinion, and then proceeds thus: "As a civil war is never publicly proclaimed, eo nomine, against insurgents, its actual existence is a fact in our domestic history which the court is bound to notice and to know. The true test of its existence, as found in the writings of the sages of the common law, may be thus summarily stated: 'When the regular course of justice is interrupted by revolt, rebellion, or insurrection, so that the courts of justice cannot be kept open, civil war exists, and hostilities may be prosecuted on the same footing as if those opposing the Government were foreign enemies invading the land.'"

Again he says: "This greatest of civil wars was not gradually developed by popular commotion, tumultuous assemblies, or local unorganized insurrections. However long may have been its previous conception, it nevertheless sprung forth suddenly from the parent brain, a Minerva in the full panoply of war. It is not the less a civil war, with belligerent parties in hostile array, because it may be called an 'insurrection' by one side, and the insurgents be considered as rebels or traitors. It is not necessary that the independence of the revolted province or State be acknowledged in order to constitute it a party belligerent in a war according to the law of nations."

In the case of the Santissima Trindad (seventh Wheaton, three hundred and thirty-seventh, quoted in the same opinion) the Court says; "The Government of the United States has recognized the existence of a civil war between Spain and her colonies, and has avowed her determination to remain neutral between the parties. Each party is, therefore, deemed by us a belligerent nation, having so far as concerns us, the sovereign rights of war."

Now with the facts of the late rebellion, as it is usually called, staring us all in the face, and in view of the authorities just cited, and especially that emanating from the highest judicial tribunal in our country, I am at a loss to perceive how any judge or court, whether State or Federal, can assume the responsibility of pronouncing otherwise than that it was a civil war—that the parties engaged in it were belligerents, and as such, entitled to exercise every right accorded to them by the laws of war. It will of course be conceded, that if it were a civil war, and the parties engaged in it were belligerents in the sense of international law, then whatever one of the belligerent parties might do in conformity to the law and usages of war, so also might the other party.

Taking then the statement in the petition of McCann to be true, it only remains to inquire, so far as this branch of the subject is concerned, whether the court martial regularly convened, as it is alleged, for the trial of Hann, upon the charges set forth in the petition, was such a military tribunal as is recognized by the laws of war, or, in other words, by the law of nations.

The petition asserts that Hann was charged as a secret, active, public enemy of the so-called Confederate States, and of the armies in occupation of East Tennessee, with committing an act contrary to the laws of war, viz: conspiring and attempting with others secretly, and not in connection with any organized body of the troops of the United States, to destroy the railroad running from Chattanooga to Bristol, which road was used by the armies of the so-called Confederacy for the daily transportation of troops, munitions of war, supplies, etc.; that he, with others, actually burned and destroyed an important bridge on said road, and shot and captured divers Confederate soldiers then guarding said bridge.

These are the acts, it is alleged, of a secret, active, and public enemy of the so-called Confederate States, and the question is, whether the court that tried him is such a tribunal as is recognized by the laws of war. To establish this proposition it is unnecessary to do more at this time than to refer to the opinion of Attorney General Speed in answer to the question of President Johnson—whether the persons charged with the offense of assassinating the President could be tried by a military tribunal, or whether they must be tried before a civil court? The whole scope of that opinion goes to show, not only that there must be military tribunals to decide questions arising in time of war between belligerents, who are open and active enemies, but also to determine the fate of those who are active but secret participants in the hostilities. He says:—"The commander of an army in time of war has the same power to organize military tribunals and execute their judgments that he has to set his squadrons in the field and fight battles. His authority in such cases is from the law and usage of war."—He also says that a bushwhacker, a jayhawker, a bandit, a war rebel, an assassin, being public enemies, may be tried, condemned, and executed as offenders against the laws of war. The soldier that would fail to try a spy or bandit, after his capture (and I suppose any other secret, active enemy), would be as derelict in duty as if he were to capture. He is as much bound to try and execute, if guilty, as he is to arrest. The same law which makes it his duty to pursue and kill or capture makes it his duty to try according to the usages of war. The Judge of a civil court is not more strongly bound, under the Constitution and the law, to try a criminal than is the military to try an offender against the laws of war. These are among the rights which accrue to belligerents from the laws of war, and of course any belligerent has a right to exercise them. The petitioner insists that they were lawfully exercised by the court martial for the trial of Hann, of which he was a member, and I confess that I am unable to perceive any distinction between that case and the cases enumerated by the Attorney-General in the opinion to which I have referred.

It is my opinion, therefore, that if the charges made against Hann, as the same are stated in the petition, were true, he would be an offender against the laws of war, and might properly be tried by a military court. And that the members of such court, if they acted in good faith, even though they may have given a wrong judgment, cannot be held responsible upon an indictment, or other proceeding, civil or criminal, in a State court, for the part they may have enacted in such trial. The laws of war being a part of the laws of nations, and consequently are laws of the United States, the courts of the respective States are as much bound to respect them as are the courts of the United States.

Upon the question as to whether the so called Confederate States was a Government de facto, I deem it unnecessary now to express an opinion.—But it is certain that the Government of the United States never so acknowledged it, nor did any other power of which I am aware. Such acknowledgement, I presume, would be essential to make it a de facto government within the meaning of the law of nations.

The only remaining question to be considered is that made upon the power of a Federal judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus in this case. This is a question of paramount importance, and so far as the application is concerned, must absorb all others which have preceded it. It is one, however, which has been so definitely and absolutely settled, that it would seem impossible that there could now be any conflict of opinion upon it.

It must be remembered that the District and the Circuit Courts of the United States, and the judges of said courts, can exercise jurisdiction in those cases only where it is expressly conferred upon them by a law of Congress. And so upon application made to a District Judge, as is the case on this petition, to issue the writ of habeas corpus, he must consult the acts of Congress to ascertain what his power and jurisdiction are upon that subject.

The fourteenth section of the Judiciary Act of seventeen hundred and eighty-nine, provides, "That the Courts of the United States shall have power to issue writs of scire facias, habeas corpus, and all other writs not specially provided for by statute, which may be necessary for the exercise of their respective jurisdictions and agreeable to the principles and usages of law. And that either of the Justices of the Supreme Court, as well as Judges of the District Courts, shall have power to grant writs of habeas corpus for the purpose of an inquiry into the cause of commitment: Provided, that writs of habeas corpus shall in no case extend to prisoners in jail, unless where they are in custody under or by color of the authority of the United States, or are committed for trial before some Court of the same, or are necessary to be brought into Court to testify."

This law is so plain that it cannot be misapprehended, and it admits of no comment.

The petitioner, according to his own showing, is a prisoner in jail, upon the charges of murders preferred against him by indictment in the State Court, and he is not "in custody under or by color of the authority of the United States, or committed for trial before any court of the same."

I have, therefore, no power or jurisdiction under the law, to grant the prayer of the Petitioner in this case, and consequently the writ must be denied. See the case ex parte Dorr, seven Howard, one hundred and four, ex parte Cabrera, one Wash. C. C. two hundred and thirty-four.

The provisions of the act of Congress passed in eighteen hundred and forty-two, and which were so earnestly pressed by counsel, I am satisfied have no application to this case, but are applicable alone to subjects or citizens of a foreign State.

It has been intimated in the course of the argument that, from the embittered state of feelings and the personal animosities which have been engendered during the war, there is danger that the petitioner, if permitted to remain in the custody of the State authorities, and be tried by them, may be made a sacrifice to the relentless bitterness of party faction. Of such a result I cannot permit myself to indulge the thought for a moment.—My confidence in the uprightness and integrity of the courts of the country, both State and Federal, utterly forbids any such apprehension.

Courts have been instituted for the best and wisest purposes. It is their peculiar province to administer the laws without partiality or prejudice, and when thus prompted in the discharge of their duties, every man, no matter what may be his station in life, can feel that his legal rights will be protected, and that the laws will be administered to him in that spirit of justice by which it is presumed the courts of the country are actuated. The eyes of the law constitute the only medium through which a court should see—and inasmuch as the law makes no distinction in its application amongst men, and consequently tolerates no bias in its administration, it should be the highest ambition of a just and upright Judge to discharge the duties incumbent upon him without bias, and in total disregard of extraneous influences, come from whatever source they may. This being the spirit which should, and doubtless does, animate the courts in their administration of the laws, it would not only be uncourteous, but exceedingly unbecoming in me to indulge even a suspicion that any State court would not be actuated by it in the discharge of its judicial functions. But if it were even made manifest to me that there existed, from any cause whatever, grounds sufficient to distrust the State tribunals, that distrust could add nothing to the jurisdiction with which I am invested as a United States Judge, or in any degree enlarge the powers which the law has conferred upon me.

The Weekly Sentinel.

The Weekly Sentinel will be issued about the 9th of January. Our friends will please send in their orders for it at once.

To Our Friends.

The time of many of our subscribers will expire on the 1st of January next. Many of these have not paid us up yet. All therefore, who wish to change the Daily to the Weekly or Semi-Weekly or who wish to continue the Daily will please inform us by the 8th of January at farthest.

Gov. Worth enters upon his Duties.

His Excellency, Gov. Worth arrived in the city on Wednesday night, and on yesterday morning after consultation with Gov. Holden, at once entered upon the duties of his office. We append the correspondence between Hon. W. H. Seward, Secretary of State and Gov. Worth.

DISPATCH TO THE GOVERNOR ELECT,

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, December 23, 1865.

To His Excellency the Governor of the State of North Carolina, Raleigh, North Carolina:

SIR: By the direction of the President, I have the honor to transmit to you a copy of a communication which has been addressed to his Excellency, W. W. Holden, late Provisional Governor of North Carolina, whereby he has been relieved of the trust heretofore reposed in him, and directed to deliver in your Excellency's possession the papers and property relating to that trust.

I have the honor to tender you the co-operation of the Government of the United States, whenever it may be found necessary in effecting the early restoration and the permanent prosperity and welfare of the State over which you have been called to preside.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

DISPATCH OF GOV. WORTH TO MR. SEWARD.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Raleigh N. C., Dec. 28, 1865.

Hon. Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State, Washington City D. C.

SIR:—In pursuance of your dispatch of the 23d inst., communicating to me a copy of a communication addressed by order of the President to W. W. Holden, Provisional Governor, whereby he is relieved of the trust heretofore reposed in him, I have this day entered upon my duties as Civil Governor of the State, having been heretofore duly qualified before both branches of the General Assembly.

I desire, through you, to assure the President of my earnest desire to co-operate with him in all measures tending to the complete restoration of harmonious relations between North Carolina and the United States.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant,

JONATHAN WORTH.

Holden and go in, and Worth and Stay out."

Since the announcement of the President's telegram to Gov. Holden intimating his wish for him to continue in office, several of our cotemporaries in the State have twitted us about our unfortunate course, and the delay we had occasioned in the restoration of the Union, by the advocacy of Mr. Worth's claims. We were not disposed to reply then, nor will we now twit them in return. We knew then that the election of Mr. Worth could do neither the State nor any one else any harm, and we think so still. We only refer at the head of this article, the text upon which they preached so much nonsense, as a simple reminder and as a warning to them in future.

Opinion of Judge Trigg.

We have placed on our first page, a recent decision of Judge Trigg, U. S. District Judge of Tennessee, because of its intrinsic merit and especially because his arguments have a bearing on questions which may arise in the Courts in this State. Our legal friends will be edified and benefited. Judge Trigg is soon to try the first case of treason which has occurred in this country since the trial of Aaron Burr. It is the case of a Confederate officer in Tennessee. We are glad able and clear a head has charge of

The Test Oath.

The feelings which prompted the passage of the "test oath" by Congress, however justifiable at the time, ought certainly to have expired when the war ended. The circumstances were extraordinary and the condition of the country immensely threatening, both as to the hostile attitude of the South and the temper of many at the North, who felt at least some sympathy for the Southern people. If any state of things could justify the passage of an unconstitutional law, to save the country from peril, perhaps the existing state of affairs at that time, may be pleaded for the passage of this act. Not only was the South in revolt, but there were many persons at the North, whose bitter hostility to the party in power, might very justly have created doubt and uneasiness as to their fidelity, who without this check might have aspired to office and have been sources of danger even at home.

But all these sources of alarm have subsided and passed away. Men's views have materially changed and all hostility to the government is at an end. The pleas for the continuance of a law, clearly violative of the Constitution, and so long as it remains in force, directly in antagonism with the purposes of the government to restore the Union, can no longer be urged. Its operation and effects must continue to be adverse to the great purposes of the constitution, and destructive to its ends and aims, and hence an offence and a barrier so long as it exists.

There is however one view of the case, which is not dwelt upon, but which we observe has been strongly pressed recently by Mr. Reverdy Johnson before the Supreme Court of the United States. The constitution of the United States cannot be justly or correctly construed, so that the powers claimed by any department of the Government, will certainly bring it in conflict with another co-ordinate branch. The constitution certainly designs to preserve in harmony the three elements or departments of the government. But the enforcement of the "test oath" directly comes in conflict with the high and solemn prerogative of the President, in pardoning offenders. This power granted by the Constitution, is an immense one, yet it is necessary that it be lodged somewhere, and no hands in this government are more fit than those of the President. It is an absolute power vested in him alone, and cannot be exercised by or divided with any other.

The pardon of the President, in the sense of forgiveness for crime or offence, justifies or absolves the offender from all prior guilt—makes him a new man and fully restores him to the favor and confidence of the government. If it fall short of effecting all this for the offender, it fails to meet the ends and aims of the constitution.—But if Congress, another branch of the government, can affix such terms of admission to its members as are embraced in the "test oath," it is plain that Congress can change, modify or render null this power of the President, and in effect nullify the Constitution itself. When once the President has granted a full pardon to any offender against the laws of the United States, we do not assume too much when we affirm, that there remains no power in any department of the government to cancel or make null that pardon, or deprive the pardoned person of its benefits. Nor can it be the province of any branch of the government to go behind the pardon, to inflict punishment upon the offender. But the enforcement of the "test oath" against the Southern members of Congress does go behind the pardon of the President to punish them, and in making their former conduct for which they have been pardoned, a disability to their serving in the Congress, neutralizes and nullifies the pardoning power of the President and by consequence, the Constitution itself.

Council of State.

Gov. Worth has called the Council of State together to consult upon public affairs.

THE SEABOARD & ROANOKE RAILROAD will be completed to Murfree's to-day, which will form the connection to Weldon. The cars will commence running to the Roanoke river on Monday. The Weldon bridge not being yet completed, the connection with Weldon will be by means of the ferry across the river. The officers in charge of this road are entitled to due credit for pushing the work to its present completion. We are not informed as to the extent of the unfinished work on the Weldon bridge.

Serious Disturbance in Alexandria.

By passengers from Alexandria, Va., we learn that on Christmas day there was heavy fighting in the streets between the whites and negroes, in which several negroes were killed, one account says three, another says fourteen. Two white men were wounded, though, we believe, not very severely. The difficulty, as we learn, originated as follows: The negroes, with fife and drum, and headed by a negro armed with a Spencer rifle, paraded the streets in the morning, in a manner which was understood by the whites as a bravado and defiance. Many of the young men were extremely excited by this circumstance, and some others connected with it, and about 3 o'clock the fighting commenced, and from that time until night, the streets resounded with the explosions of fire arms. We do not know the numbers engaged on either side; but the blacks, as will always be the case, fared the worse in the encounter which they had done so much to provoke. We hear that one of the negro chapels was torn down during the rioting, and perhaps there was some other damage to property. The military was called out, and restored quiet to the city. Several arrests were made.

We have given the above as reported by several reliable gentlemen; but must await further information before we can present a more exact account of an affair which in any view is much to be regretted.—Richmond Sentinel.

PERSONAL.—John Slidell is still living quietly in Paris. His family goes very little into society. Mr. Mason is in London, Jacob Thompson and J. P. Benjamin are also there, and John C Breckinridge is shortly expected from Canada with his family. Major Huse, formerly agent for the purchase of arms for the Confederacy, is in Paris, as is also Judge Rust, of Louisiana.—Mrs. Gwin and her daughter are now residing in London.

Commodore Tatnall and Gen. McLaws are living in Savannah.

The members of Congress from this State have all returned home.

Washington News and Gossip.

Washington dates of the 23rd, brings the following items:

The Southern Delegations.

The Southern delegations, Senators and all, having decided to go home and wait the action of Congress, called to-day upon the President and notified him of their intention. They expect to return and be admitted by the 4th of next March.

The President's First Reception.

The first reception will be given by the President on New Year's day, but no others will be given until after the recess of Congress, and the reception rooms can be newly furnished. It is not probable that there will be any levee held until February; a month, at least, being required to place the Executive mansion in a respectable condition.

The Cabinet Changes.

Among the on dits in political circles there is one that Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin, will probably take the place of Secretary Harlan in the Cabinet in a very short time. Mr. Harlan's intention to retire is well known.

Pardon Business Dull.

The issuing of pardons has almost entirely ceased. About a dozen requisitions were made to-day for North Carolina cases—all of the twenty thousand dollar class.

Internal Revenue Decision on Warehouse Receipts.

The law in reference to stamping receipts for warehouses has been heretofore construed so as to require these receipts to bear stamps according to the value of goods involved. Thus, the greater the value of goods borne on the receipt the higher would be the denomination of the stamp to be used. The Commissioner has just decided that no receipt for warehouse goods requires a stamp of a higher denomination than twenty-five cents.

The New Bankrupt Bill.

The bill, which in all its provisions is similar to that of the last session, has been introduced, read a second time, and referred to a Select Committee. The suggestions made by Edwin James have been adopted by the committee, and little doubt is entertained but that it will become a law this session. It provides a system of voluntary and compulsory bankruptcy, and is clear and simple in its details, relieving the honest and punishing the fraudulent debtor.

Minister Campbell—His Instructions.

The instructions of our new Minister to Mexico, who is ordered ot once to his post, and to remain near President Juarez, are of so decided a character that the Imperial party will not be long in ascertaining the policy of the United States Government.

Authorization of Another National Bank.

The Mechanic's National Bank of New York City, with a capital of $600,000, was authorized to-day.

Increasing Inflation of the Currency.

The official statement of the Treasury to-day shows the National Bank circulation to be $233-735,000. An increase of upward of $4,000,000 has been issued during the present week.

Romantic Affair in Brooklyn--A Double Murder Attempted.

NEW YORK, December 25.—In Brooklyn, about 5½ o'clock, on Saturday evening, several pistol shots in rapid succession, followed by the scream of a female, were heard to proceed from the neighborhood of Clinton street, between West Baltic and Harrow, and almost immediately in front of the Catholic Asylum. Owing to the fact of there being but few persons abroad in the vicinity, however, only two gentlemen, Mr. Hugh Allen and Mr. Tell, were sufficiently startled to inquire into the matter of the disturbance. These gentlemen indeed, were near enough to witness some part of the melancholy affair. Mr. Tell seeing a man rushing wildly down the street, at once started off in pursuit, while Mr Allen attended to the unfortunate victim, Miss Francis M. Dayton, whom he found stretched senseless upon the sidewalk. Assistance was forthwith procured, and the young lady conveyed to the hospital. Meanwhile the murderer, whose name is W. H. Russ, followed by Mr. Tell, ran rapidly down Atlantic street, where he succeeded in eluding his pursuer, who supposed he had crossed that thoroughfare. It appeared from subsequent investigation that he had turned down Pacific street toward the river, and on reaching the dock jumped overboard with the intention of drowning himself At low tide, however, the water is very shallow at this part, and he was unable to accomplish his purpose. Extricating himself from the mud, he succeeded in again reaching the shore. Had he selected any other part of the shore, he would have found the water sufficiently deep. On regaining the land, according to the statement which he has since made, he shot himself twice, with the intention of ending his existence.

In this he also failed, and returned up Atlantic street, all muddy and wet, and his clothes frozen stiff. He was here seen by Officer Powers, of the Forty-third Precinct, who took him into custody. On reaching the station-house, he was so benumbed that he could scarcely speak. After sitting for awhile before the stove, however, he made the following statement:

I loved the young woman Miss Dayton. She pretended, once, to love me, but she only made believe, and at length deceived me. I was made the victim of her enchantments—was her dupe. I spent money for her comfort and welfare, she promising to become my wife, and to settle down here, where we might be happy. I finally found out that she had been cheating me, and we were separated. But I was not happy without her.—The quarrel was made up, and we became friends again. It was only recently that I learned that she was still filled with only ingratitude.—There is nothing against the character of Francis Dayton. It was all from her ingratitude. She would at one time consent to a union, and as quickly negative that assent. We had been talking together of this when I did the act, which I intended should end both our lives at one time and the same moment.

It is not known exactly what is the state of his victim, she is not suffering greatly, but is in a critical condition.

HON. A. H. STEPHENS.—A letter from Milledgeville to the Macon Journal says "that distinguished Georgian, Hon. A. H. Stephens, is here, to aid, by his wisdom and prudent counsel, this legislative body to replace Georgia among the sisterhood, and elevate her to her original position. His very presence is like the blast from Roderick's horn—worth a thousand men.' His health is bad, and he looks more like a dead man than a live one."

CAN HAVE A PRESIDENT, BUT NOT CONGRESSMEN.—The Radicals or malignant majority in Congress, do not consider the Southern, or late Confederate States as entitled to be represented in that body. At the same time they recognize a citizen of those States as President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy. They can have a President, but no members of Congress. Here is a nice distinction.—Cin. Enquirer.

Interesting from Mexico--Reported Revolt.

A dispatch dated New Orleans, Dec. 22, says:

The Times' Mexican correspondent says the Liberal General Diaz is carrying all before him, and the whole State of Oaxaca is in arms against the Imperialists. The Liberals are masters of the whole coast between Vera Cruz and Tuspan, also south of Vera Cruz. Foraging parties of of Austrians have met several defeats.

Marshal Bazaine writes to Mejia that the Northern frontier is under the double protection of the Emperor of Mexico and the Emperor of the French.

Another, dated San Francisco, Dec. 23, says:

Advices from Mexico state that a revolution against Maximilian has taken place, and that General Lopez and his officers had been driven from power.

The Few York Herald's Brownsville correspondence, of December 7th, says:

All well informed people in Mexico think there are now not over 15,000 troops in the country. The Liberals had evacuated Monterey in consequence of the return of the French troops from Saltille. The Liberal army was encamped near Camargo on the 1st of December. A large amount of money and goods were taken from the merchants and other citizens there, and many Liberal troops were deserting on account of a lack of clothing and other necessaries.

Some further correspondence has occurred between General Weitzeil and Mejia. Weitzel alleges that Mejia has, on mere suspicion, imprisoned innocent American citizens, and informs him, by direction of Gen. Sheridan, that if such outrages are repeated no apologies for them will be accepted, and that Mejia will not be permitted to commit acts against the United States which are no accidents, and that the government will not accept his personal apologies for bad faith. General Mejia claims that the persons imprisoned were found in arms against the Imperial cause. The Imperial troops are reported to have robbed the citizens of Saltille of large sums by forced loans.

FAYETTEVILLE N. C. MILITARY ACADEMY.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS INSTITUTION have been resumed without the military feature, and an additional number of pupils will be received for the balance of the session, which will terminate 26 weeks from the 1st of January, 1866. The discipline and course of instruction will be the same as in similar schools, with the exception of a thorough course in the Ancient Languages, embracing Latin and Greek composition. In surveying and engineering the instruction will be both theoretical and practical. Arrangements will be made at an early day to secure a complete set of Chemical and Philosophical apparatus. No pains or expense will be spared to make this one of the best Schools in the country. The buildings are located on Haymount which overlooks the town of Fayetteville, and which is remarkable for the healthiness of the location, the beauty of the scenery, and the intelligence, refinement and high moral character of the people. There is almost daily connection between Wilmington and Fayetteville by steamboat, and this is suggested as the best route to the latter place from almost any quarter. Students will be received at any time, and will be charged from the date of entrance, though it will be best to enter about the 1st of January, 1866.

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

EASTERN MAIL.—Owing to the carrying away of the Neuse river bridge between this city and Goldsboro by the freshet, we have been without an Eastern mail for several days. This will account to our subscribers for the failure of the Sentinel.

SELLING AT COST.—Such is the general scarcity of money, we believe goods sold more rapidly before at full prices than now at cost. Our merchants however, really offer goods at cost prices.

TRINITY COLLEGE.—This institution it will be seen, opens its next session under the auspices of its old President, Rev. Dr. Craven, on the 11th of January. The faculty of the institution has been reorganized and it offers inducements to students.

Our friend Carraway it will be seen, leaves Raleigh, much to the regret of his friends. Mr. Brown succeeds him in the store of Hart & Lewis.

It will be seen that the exercises of the next session of the North Carolina Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind, will commence on Monday next.

See various notices among our new advertisments, which we have not space to refer to specially.

The notice to us to insert Gov. Holden's proclamation in reference to the vote upon the ordinances of the Convention, came too late to put it in type for this issue. It will appear to-morrow.

2 They have been known for years and tested by thousands in the South, and are specially adapted to the diseases of this climate.

3 Hundreds of persons are known to have been cured by them.

4 They are not recommended by the proprietor for everything, but only for diseases which arise from disordered livers.

Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, via Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal.

THE COMMODIOUS STEAMERS PIONEER and Commodore Adams, will leave Newberne for Norfolk on TUESDAY of each week at 8 o'clock A M, connecting with the different lines of steamers for the above-named points. On and after the first day of December next they will leave on Tuesday and Friday of each week, making semi-weekly trips. Shippers of Goods will receive every facility and accommodation for the transportation of the same, as arrangements have been made with the different companies to forward goods to this line at low rates and without delay. Each of these steamers are capable of carrying through the canal without difficulty, as they were built expressly for the trade. They are fitted up with STATE ROOMS and BERTHS capable of accommodating thirty-five passengers. Every attention will be paid to the comfort of passengers, who will not be subject to the inconvenience of transfer to other vessels, but will be taken through direct without change.

The tables of the steamers are liberally supplied with the best the market affords. Families traveling will find it to their interest to take this line, as they will thereby escape the danger and discomfort of a sea route, and the fatigue of railroad travel.

On the 15th of December next, if the business of the line warrants it, the steamer Williams will be put on the route, and tri-weekly trips will be made.

For freight or passage apply to Whitford, Dill & Co., Newbern, N C.

New Line Opened! Makes Two Trips to the Old Line's One!

A CREECH HAS JUST RETURNED FROM the North, where he has bought his second supply of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

Embracing the various New Styles of the Season, together with Ladies' Cloaks, Long Shawls, Breakfast Shawls, Ladies and Misses' Goods, Ladies and Misses' Hoop Skirts, Ladies and Misses' Balmoral Shoes, Gent's Boots and Shoes, Boys, Youths and Children's Boots and Shoes. Felt Hats, the Derby the Dasher, the Planter's wide brim, and other styles for Men's wear. Boys, Youths and Children's Hats. Wood and Willow Ware, Crockery and Glass Ware, and a superior lot of Family Groceries,

Take my stock altogether, I have one among the largest and most desirable and complete stocks of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods in the City.

Now, allow me to say that I bought my Goods to sell, and they must and shall be sold; but I don't expect to take a piece of poetry in one hand and a full grown humbug in the other and climb up to the clouds and fish out the birds of Paradise and gently bring them down with a placard stuck on their backs, "Selling out at Cost! selling out at cost!" No, I deal in no such humbug. I keep no such a class of Goods. I keep no time-worn, shelf-rubbed, defaced or dusty Goods—dust so thick you can rub it off with a knife. My Goods are all new, and of good styles, and I intend to sell them as low as anybody that bought goods with the expectation of paying for them, and the man that sold the goods to the man that don't intend to pay for them, is a fool—and the man that sells them is a rascal. Now this is plain talk, but 'tis no slip of the tongue. I mean what I say, and say what I mean. I have lived here and sold goods here for twenty years. I expect to remain here. I pay my taxes to support Institutions of the City, County and the State. I expect to continue to do so. I respectfully ask my old customers, my old friends and new ones to call and examine my stock. I will deal with you honest and treat you right. If I don't sell you goods as cheap as you can buy the same class of goods elsewhere I don't expect you to buy. Call at the R. Smith building, house formerly occupied by Creech & Litchford, Merchants and Auctioneers.

IMPORTANT COMMUNICATION,

For the Times, and all Times, to be Considered.

The first stone in the structure of life insurance was laid by the hand of the Almighty when he planted in the human heart the generous impulses of love and affection, which prompt us to provide for our own; but the keystone is this law of average to secure which we bind ourselves together to bear each other's burdens, the stronger and richer, the longer lives must be, helping the weaker and poorer brother that is cut down in early life, and by the universal law of compensation it gives us either the blessings of a long life, or the pleasing assurance of leaving a competency to our loved ones, as the films of death are curtaining them from our sight forever.

Times like the present make most manifest the peculiar benefit of life insurance. Business is interrupted. Men are anxious for the future. Thousands have families growing up around them whose property depends upon the continuance of the father's life. Should he die, the income would cease; the children must be withdrawn from school; the mother and elder children must resort to every expedient to sustain the family; and, in many cases with the utmost exertion, this can not be done; the wife will return to her father for support, and the children, separated, must go the older to seek work, and the younger be distributed among friends. Such reverses befall men the least expecting them. While business is active, and prosperity gives exhilaration and hope, men can hardly be made to feel that they are within a hand's breadth of utter reverse, and that their families may be scattered in a month, by the death of the father. But hard times lead men to think of these things.

Now if a man has insured a sum of one, five or ten thousand dollars upon his life, this anxiety is removed. While he lives, he can support his family. If he dies, ample provision is made for them.

It is every man's duty to provide for his family. That provision must include its future contingent condition. That provision, so far as it is material men ordinarily seek to secure by their own accumulations and investments. But all these are uncertain. The man rich to-day, is, from causes beyond his reach, poor to-morrow. A war in China a revolution in Europe, a rebellion in America, overrule ten thousand fortunes in every commercial community. But, in life insurance there are no risks or contingencies. Other investments may fail. A house may burn down. Banks may break. Bonds and mortgages may be seized for debt, and all property may fall into the bottomless gulf of bankruptcy. But money secured to your family by life insurance, will go to them without fail or interruption, provided you have selected a sound and honorable insurance company. Of two courses, one of which may leave your family destitute, and the other of which assures them a comfortable support at your decease, can there be a doubt which is to be chosen?"

The benefits of life insurance are not confined to a provision for families, but are as numerous as the various circumstances of individuals. It enables a person to make a provision for a wife, a parent, a child, a friend or domestic, depending on him, and he lives secure, that while his industry is providing for their support, his savings are effectually guarding them against want in the event of his death, thus doing his whole duty toward them instead of only one half of it.

It enables a person to raise money on loans where real security can not be offered, to provide for the prompt payment of his debts in the case of his death, and to secure the eventual payment of doubtful debts.

By it a charitable individual may donate a legacy to some beneficent institution; or a congregation a support to their minister's family in case of his death.

It provides means to reimburse the sum expended in the purchase of any life estate, on the death of the person during whose life it is held; to remove incumbrances, payable on events connected with the termination of life; and secures the return of money paid for education, for capital embarked in business, or other advances made for children or others, in the event of their premature death; and, generally, it affords a certain indemnity against any pecuniary loss whatsoever, to which one individual may become subject, by reason of the death of another.

It is a subject, then, which concerns the poor as well as the rich, the man living on his income, the mechanic the farmer, the professional man, the merchant—in short all classes of the community.

Surely, such an institution deserves the countenance, the consideration and support of all reflecting men, and is doubly recommended, when it is considered how very small a sacrifice of some personal gratification, will secure, by its means, the independence and happiness of a family.

W. H. CROW, Gen'l Agent.

W. B. GULICK, Local Agent for the Ætna Life Insurance Company. Takes risks from the age of 14 to 65.
